

CHARTERED COLLEGE OF TEACHING AND TEACHER DEVELOPMENT TRUST LAUNCH NEW CPD PARTNERSHIP TO SUPPORT LEADERSHIP OF TEACHER DEVELOPMENT

A new partnership between the Chartered College of Teaching and Teacher Development Trust will support individuals to become local and national champions of leading teacher development.

The Associate Qualification in CPD Leadership from the Teacher Development Trust includes critical engagement with research, peer review and an in-school project to evaluate and refine the leadership, culture and process of CPD within participants' schools

By completing the six-month programme, participants can gain Recognition of Prior Certified Learning (RPCL). This will give 20 credits towards Chartered Status and exemption from the Development of Teaching Practice Award on the Chartered Teacher (Leadership) pathway.

Jonny Goggs, Head of Partnerships, Chartered College of Teaching said:

"We are really pleased to be strengthening our partnership with the Teacher Development Trust, who have a stellar track record in providing high-quality, evidence-informed CPD to schools and colleges. This new phase of partnership provides recognition for those already leading on CPD in their settings, in the form of credits towards Chartered Status. We look forward to working with TDT with the shared goal of providing purposeful, personalised CPD opportunities to school leaders, to the benefit of children and young people."

David Weston, co-CEO (Research & Innovation), Teacher Development Trust said:

"We are absolutely delighted to deepen our long-standing partnership with the Chartered College of Teaching through this exciting new CPD partnership. It provides a fantastic new pathway for individuals to progress from our flagship TDT Associate Qualification in CPD Leadership and gain recognition towards Chartered Status. This partnership reconfirms our commitment to the importance of an independent, strong, and respected professional body at the heart of our profession. We look forward to continuing to work with the Chartered College to support the development of effective and evidence-informed CPD leadership across the education sector."

About the Chartered College of Teaching:

The Chartered College of Teaching is the professional body for teachers. We are working to celebrate, support and connect teachers to take pride in their profession and provide the best possible education for children and young people. We are dedicated to bridging the gap between practice and research and equipping teachers from the second they enter the classroom with the knowledge and confidence to make the best decisions for their pupils.

About Teacher Development Trust:

Founded by teachers in 2012, the Teacher Development Trust (TDT) is the national charity for effective professional development in schools and colleges. Our mission is powerful professional development in every school and college so that teachers thrive and children succeed. Our work is underpinned by the key principles of effective teacher professional development and learning. With support from CUREE, TES Global, and Durham University we have led the way in commissioning and publishing guidance around effective CPD, including the Developing Great Teaching report in 2015, which underpinned the development of the Department of Education's Standard for Teachers' Professional Development in 2016. We have since published and supported work on quality CPD, school culture and improvement independently and with Wellcome, NAHT, NFER, Sheffield Hallam and the Chartered College.
